The chart consists of three vertical staves of musical notation. Each staff has five horizontal lines and four vertical bar lines, creating six measure spaces. The first staff begins with a whole note (solid black circle). The second staff begins with a half note (open circle). The third staff begins with a quarter note (half solid, half open). Vertical dashed lines separate the staves. The lyrics are aligned with the notes, with each word placed under its corresponding note or group of notes. The music is divided into measures by vertical bar lines.
